Saving the Gloves.

New gloves should never be put on in flat as the ogre's plate in the fairy tale, ion. Before beginning operations a lit- gie low bow of black velvet, whose wide, tle powder should be dusted into the stiff ends touch the edge of the brim at gloves, for this will permit them to each side. Under this brim, as if growslip on easily The fingers should be ing out of the temples, fasten two large carefully pulled on, with the seams balls of silver and rhinestones; next straight, before the thumb is inserted from the two crown sides underneath into its pocket. Then the glove should hang two black ostrich feathers that be smoothed on gradually; the second curi around the coffure and droop to the button and those above the second shoulders, and lo, the latest French should then be buttoned. The first freak that offends the American palate!
